Avengers Creator Crafting 'Perfect' Chinese Superhero

Stan Lee is working with a state-run Chinese entertainment company to produce a superhero movie.

A Chinese government-backed movie studio announced plans Monday for a new partnership with comic legend Stan Lee to produce a Chinese superhero who can compete with Spider-man and The Avengers.

Lee, the comic book writer behind the Fantastic Four, the Hulk, Spider-Man, Thor, Iron Man, and the X-Men, wants to create a superhero who appeals to Chinese audiences. The Chinese market remains largely unexplored for Hollywood, and many superhero movies, including "The Avengers", have only received luke-warm receptions. With this trend in mind, Lee and the state-run National Film Capital are teaming up to produce The Annihilator, China's own superhero. "This is the perfect Chinese hero," Lee said Monday, according to the Los Angeles Times.

Although few details have been released, the studio and Lee confirmed that The Annihilator will be a "typical superhero story." It tells the story of a young Chinese man who, after escaping from his hometown and spending time in the United States, returns to fight injustice with a disguise and powers.
